"Own Your Own Home"

These words have been a slogan for years of the thrifty, and of firms and organizations dealing in building supplies and real estate.

To own a home is the ambition of millions of families. Many realize their dream, but for many other families the dream never comes true.

In these modern times, with the federal government and private concerns making attractive concessions for the encouragement of building and home ownership, the acquisition of a home has been made easier. No longer must one have several thousand dollars before he dares invest in property. In many cases a few hundred dollars is used as a starter, with the remainder paid off in regular installments much the same as rent.

The Journal and Courier building page published Thursday was illuminating in the possibilities for home ownership. If one investigates the building advantages set forth on that page, he no doubt will find that a home is within the reach of families of average means and income.

Announcement was made that the Jacksonville Savings & Loan Association, in cooperation with the federal government, has $200,000 to loan on new homes. Building supply companies, contractors and others connected with the construction trade are well informed on the government's movement to foster home ownership, and are prepared to render valuable assistance to the public.

There are several reasons why families who want to own homes should give the matter serious attention immediately. Building costs are on the move, and are expected to go higher. At present, many firms have materials on hand that they obtained when the market was more favorable.

All that one must do to learn the upward swing of building materials is to price second-hand lumber. Some types of used materials have advanced almost double during the last year, building men say. If the second-hand materials are mounting in price, the new materials are certain to do likewise.

Another point in favor of building a home now—there probably will never be a time in several forthcoming generations when any more encouragement is offered in financing a home. The government lending agencies provide funds through local organizations now that may never be repeated. Low down payments, low and long terms of interest, and other inducements, were not to be had a dozen years ago. There is reason to believe that building will again become a more difficult problem.

Real estate values in Jacksonville are mounting. That is another argument in favor of early action in building a home. Residences erected now no doubt will increase in value for several years to come.

Owning a home, therefore, seems to be largely a matter of taking the first steps. The conditions are most favorable; materials are yet within reach, but may go higher; the government stands ready to help the citizen of average means and income move into a brand new home of his own.

The dream of owning a home will come true only when the citizen who does the dreaming snaps out of his illusions about how impossible it is, and makes practical inquiries.

Unfair To Rubinoff

Rubinoff and his violin of radio fame have received publicity of a new sort during the last few weeks. The popular maestro has been defendant in a $500,000 breach of promise suit, brought by Peggy Garcia, a hat check girl.

Rubinoff denied that he had induced the girl to believe that he was going to marry her. His attorneys were prepared to present his defense in court, but Peggy pulled a fast one—her attorneys moved for dismissal of the suit after filing up a lot of evidence on their client's behalf.

In other words, Miss Garcia told her entire story before the court, and then wouldn't permit Rubinoff to tell his.

There is possibility, of course, that a settlement was made between the parties outside of court. But Rubinoff denies that. His attorneys even resisted dismissal of the suit. They said the violin player was entitled to present his side of the case, no matter how it ended.

fore Rubinoff could have his inning in the press, the suit was off.

We are inclined to believe that the public will take the affair lightly. Rubinoff won a moral victory when the suit against him was dismissed, regardless of the fact that he did not have opportunity to testify.

The Prodigal's Return

The problem of relief at Beardstown is no longer centered in the legislative halls at Springfield, or in the state office at Chicago—it has come home.

For several years cities and townships could appeal to some other source for aid, with reasonable assurance of receiving it. But the coffers are going dry. It's much harder now for a community to convince officials that some of its people are hungry, than it was a couple of years ago when the business of relief was more of a novelty.

The most serious relief crisis in the history of Beardstown, a situation which resulted in a recent sit-down demonstration by relief clients, has caused relief supervisors and other citizens to join in a citywide program which is designated to lessen the suffering among 608 families on the township relief rolls.

A system whereby those who are able to contribute to the support of the needy, until such times as the relief clients get work or the township relief funds are replenished, is now being considered.

As a meeting of 100 citizens with Mayor Fred Cline this week it was decided to make a canvas of the city and send out a large number of letters in effort to gain contributions to the fund to provide food for relief clients during March.

As the result of a gradual breakdown of relief agencies, here we have a city of several thousand persons faced by the responsibility of taking care of its jobless.

The problem started at home, but was bundled up and taken away for an extended visit. Springfield (the state administration) kept the problem as a guest, until it wore out its welcome; Washington (the federal government) played host to the relief problem until both visitor and host could no longer get along together.

Now the problem is back home, hungry, ragged, crying for assistance. Beardstown has a job on its hands. All townships and cities have a task facing them.

The relief problem in some places has arrived home, and in other parts is on the way home.

It is an unwelcome guest, but one that is going to stick around until it finds food and lodging.

Quarantine is Lifted

Everyone is happy at the three state institutions here—the quarantine has been lifted, and employees and pupils can again go where they please, congregate when they please, and resume activities.

The quarantine at the institutions, Schools for the Blind and Deaf, and Jacksonville State hospital, had been in effect since Jan. 2. While the regulations were not iron-clad, they restricted visitors and prevented large gatherings.

As far as we are aware, the quarantine furnished the desired results. It kept out contagion that might have been brought in by visitors, and kept in any danger of infectious diseases spreading out of the institutions through the community.

The quarantine works silently in quelling epidemics. It is like a good "scar on the arm" for prevention of smallpox. When a person is vaccinated successfully, he never knows whether he would have contracted smallpox if he hadn't taken the precaution. All he knows, is, that he doesn't have smallpox.

No one doubts the value of the institution quarantine in holding down contagion here this winter. All we know is general health conditions during the winter were good.

We'll Say It Won't!

A Greene county newspaper in commenting on an extortion note sent to a Greenfield citizen, wound up by saying that if the guilty party is caught it won't be any joke.

The author of the note demanding $500 and threatening harm to the recipient's son if the amount was not paid, has not been apprehended. Some have expressed opinion that the letter was written as a joke. But the Department of Justice agents who have worked on the case are tough fellows to make laugh—an incident of that kind just doesn't affect their sense of ribaldry.

The note may have been penned by a bonafide extortionist, with no joke intended. But regardless of his motive, he no doubt has spent some unpleasant hours with the knowledge that government agents are prowling around. He should not congratulate himself this early as to his good luck.

Since the beginning of the new year, G-Men have been kept busy by a wave of extortion cases. Judging from their results on this type of crime, it would seem that extortioners are about the most stupid people alive.

For in almost every case the culprit has been tracked down, nabbed,

Do Not Bar Sunlight Completely

From Room of Measles Victim

By DR. MORRIS FISHEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Measles is in most instances a self-limiting disease. Everything must be done, therefore, to permit measles to run a satisfactory, quiet course, and to ward off dangerous complications. The child must be put to bed in a quiet room. Measures must be taken to prevent glare from irritating his eyes, but it is not advisable to bar sunlight completely from the room.

For years, it was customary to keep the sickroom darkened. Now it is better to permit the measles victim to wear dark colored glasses in order to keep out the light, as the glare is painful. Furthermore, the child should not be permitted to read, nor should there be a brilliant, irritating artificial light.

Sometimes irritation of the eyes will cause the eyelids to stick together. For this, most doctors prescribe washing with slightly warm boracic solution or warm water, which will remove the crusts and prevent general irritation.

The bed cover must not be too heavy while there is fever, but should be heavy enough to prevent chilling. If the child is very restless, it is customary to give him a warm sponge bath just before he goes to sleep. This serves not only to control the fever, but also to stop the restlessness.

After the sponge bath, his skin may be powdered with any light, clean talcum powder, which helps also to prevent irritation of the skin. If there is much itching or peeling of the skin, the doctor can prescribe lotions containing soda or other substances.

The food of the child should be chiefly of the light and fluid type as he has any fever. Then, as the fever disappears and the child begins to get better, it is customary to serve him plenty of nutritious food, particularly substances containing iron vitamins, so as to build up his blood.

It is not wise to give large amounts of laxatives or cathartics for the bowels; in fact, these should never be given to sick children without a doctor's prescription.

The patient, however, should be given plenty of fruits, including drinks which tend toward alkalization, such as orangeade, orange juice, and lemonade.

In very severe cases of measles it has sometimes been customary to attempt use of convalescent serum; that is, the fluid matter taken from the blood of a person who has recovered recently from the disease.

Important paper now known as the Emancipation Proclamation, but first he read them two chapters from the humorous writings of Artemus Ward.

If Abraham Lincoln found time occasionally to smile, even in the midst of war, why should we go around with chronic grouches because of our petty inconveniences?

Greetologist—Do you want an outside or an inside room?
Sailorist—Gimme an inside bunk. It looks like it might rain outside.

Just the minute you get satisfied with what you have, the concrete has begun to set in your head. Think that one over.

Friend—So you bought a radio thinking it would keep your children home evenings?
Man—Yes. But now it's worse. They wait around until the announcer says, "Good night, everybody!"

Note how a man stands by his word. Then you will know whether or not you can afford to tie to him.

A painter contracted to paint the house of a tailor. He was skippy with his materials, and the resulting job was quite sketchy.

Painter—Well, is there anything wrong with it?
Tailor—I should say there is! I asked for a coat and you gave me a vest.

Read It or Not—Cannon fire has been heard 100 miles away.

McGrady Takes His Night Off

This picture of Edward F. McGrady, in evening clothes as he attended a recent Washington social function, reveals that the assistant secretary of labor, usually pictured hurrying between labor conferences, occasionally finds time for relaxation. But he may have been planning a quick change to "work clothes" as unrest threatened among steel and coal workers.

CONCORD S.S. CLASS ENJOYS MEETING

Concord—The Golden Circle class of the Christian Church Sunday School met on Wednesday night at Morgan hall for class study with a program preceding the class meeting. About 40 were present which included the families of members. The program was as follows: All stood and sang "Count Your Blessings" and repeated the 23rd Psalm. S. M. Henderson gave the invocation and supper was served cafeteria style. After supper the program was opened by community singing led by Paul Ogilvie. Reading, Miss Melba Abernathy. Solo, Mary Frances Laughary. Reading, Mrs. Ethel Weeks. Instrumental music, Mary and Jane Williams. Solo, Mrs. Lawrence Kemp. Reading, Mrs. B. A. Cruz. Solo, R. E. Abernathy. At the end of the social hour the class session was held. The secretary and treasurer made their reports and a short time was spent in study of the fifth chapter of Deuteronomy and ten questions given by Mrs. Ethel Weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Brockhouse and children, of Lacon, spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Brockhouse who accompanied them home for a return visit. Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Moss, of Rock Island, were also week-end visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Brockhouse. Mrs. Eva Cooper called on her brother, Allen Abernathy in Jacksonville on Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Abernathy is improving in health now. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schmicker, of Jacksonville, were calling on old friends here on Wednesday. Word has just been received of the death of D. C. Fry at the home of Lee McGinnis a few miles northwest of Concord. The funeral will be held on Thursday at the funeral home in Arenaville and interment will be made in Iowa. Mrs. Sarah Norup returned home Sunday from a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Edith Denney in Jacksonville. Miss Mary Roberts, of Jacksonville, spent the week-end at the home of Millicent Parlier. Mrs. Clifford Fouts entered Our Saviour's hospital on Saturday night for treatment and her condition is improved so she may return to her home here within a few days.

A 'Swing' Tune for Her Public

Anna Lee, British film favorite, must know her ropes or she wouldn't put so much faith in these she's swinging on, especially since the shadow which faithfully follows her on the wall would help little if she fell. If the public tumbles to her newest picture, she might be received with open arms.

Pike Parents and Teachers Hold Meet

Dean Roma Hawkins, Speaker at Griggsville; Other News Notes

Griggsville—The Pike County Council of Parents and Teachers held a meeting here Tuesday. The Rev. Russell Booker of the Pittsfield Christian church addressed the group.

Vocal numbers were given by Stead Cadwell and by a girls' quartette composed of Glo Rose Mitchell, Marcel Sleight, Betty Anderson and Rosalene Newman, directed by Mrs. Alice P. Harshman.

Dean Roma Hawkins of Mac Murray college was the guest speaker for the afternoon.

During the business session a resolution was passed commending the action of Pike county authorities in closing several gambling places and objectionable taverns throughout the county. Presidents of congress units responded to roll call with a report of projects which are being carried on by their respective groups.

A covered dish luncheon was served at noon in the dining room of the home economics department.

WESLEY CHAPEL AID HOLDS MEETING; NEWS FROM POINT DISTRICT

The Wesley Chapel Ladies' Aid society met on Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 17, with Mrs. Laura Wilson. Due to a misunderstanding as to date of meeting and illness in the community, only a few members were present.

A short business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. Estella Hills.

The business will be continued at the joint meeting of the Worth While Sunday school class and Aid society for the annual sewing and donation for Normal baby fold.

The annual sewing and pot luck dinner dated for Feb. 23 at the home of Mrs. James Doyle was postponed on account of mumps.

There has been several cases of mumps in the community. Some have recovered from the attacks, however, and returned to school this week.

Owing to the recent illness of the pastor, Rev. C. R. Underwood, and the bad weather conditions, there were no services at Wesley Chapel on Sunday.

Shirley Jean Shumaker of near Asbury spent Tuesday with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Shumaker.

Miss Doty Smith of Decatur is visiting her grandmother Mrs. Anna Williams.

The "New Dawn" rose, a freak of nature, was the first plant patented under the plant patent act. It was found growing among a group of Van Fleet roses.

Reduces Varicose or Swollen Veins

Simple Home Treatment Prove It At Small Cost

The world progresses. Today many minor ailments that took weeks to overcome can now be helped much more quickly. If you have varicose veins or bunches start today to bring them back to normal size and if you are wise you will do so.

Just get an original bottle of Moore's Emerald Oil at Walgreen's or any dispensing pharmacist and apply it night and morning to the enlarged veins. It is very powerful and penetrating, and only a little is required.

In a short time the veins should begin to grow smaller and by regular use soon approach normal.

People who want to reduce varicose veins or simple swellings should not hesitate to try a bottle at once. It is so penetrating and powerful that a small bottle lasts a long time. (Adv.)

"ALL-BRAN LIVES UP TO REPUTATION"

If you are troubled with common constipation, read Miss Bundy's enthusiastic letter:

"I used to feel poorly all the time—just down and out. After reading an advertisement about ALL-BRAN, I got a box. It has helped me ever since." Miss Mary Bundy, Bennettsville, S. C.

Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brings "bulk" to exercise the intestines; vitamin B to tone up the intestinal tract.

Within the body, ALL-BRAN absorbs twice its weight in water. This soft mass gently clears the intestines in a safe, natural way—without any of the weakening action of pills and drugs.

Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—with every meal in severe cases. Serve as a cereal with milk or fruits, or cook into recipes. Remember—ALL-BRAN is a food—not a medicine. You buy it at the grocery store. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

team defeated the sophomores in the first basketball game of MacMurray's tournament, Wednesday night.

Play in the first quarter was slow with one basket scored by each lineup. Three field goals were chalked up by the sophomores in the second quarter with two consecutive baskets for the seniors, making a total count of 8 to 6 at the half with the sophomore squad leading.

With the score at thirteen to twelve at the end of the third quarter, the seniors put five baskets through the ring, while the sophomores netted only one point in the final quarter.

The lineups for the teams were as follows: Sophomores—Dorothy Kluppig, Jane Gustafson, Marjorie Mahon, Idella Western, Juanita Fordyce, Beverly Welsh; Seniors—Jessie Phillips, Jeanne Cincibeaux, Virginia Nichols, Elizabeth King, Eva Gremer, Catherine Wiswell.

The MacMurray freshman basketball team won its first game of the season from last year's champions, the juniors, Wednesday night in the Hardtner gymnasium by a score of 35-16.

The junior line-up was the same as last year except for Jean Ryan, guard. Other players were Myrtle Moyer and Bernadine Jones, guards; Mary Frye of Jacksonville, Jane Anne Edmunds, Elleen Kitts, and Sue Shea, forwards. Freshman players were Lucy Strowbridge, Eleanor Mahon, of Jacksonville, Mary Ella Coates, forwards;

Marjorie Viner, Peg Morris and Ruth Jelsky, guards. Lucy Strowbridge gained 24 of the 36 freshman points, while Marjorie Viner carried on an especially brilliant defensive.

Wrecked Bus Pulled From Creek After Days of Hard Work

Car Which Took Passengers on Wild Plunge is Now Back in Olsen Shop

The heavy bus which plunged over a 30-foot embankment north of this city last Saturday night, carrying more than a score of passengers in a perilous descent into a creek was hoisted from the creek bottom Wednesday afternoon. The feat was accomplished after intensive work for several days.

The crews were hampered by mud and the steepness of the bank. The bus was "snaked" out by means of a block and tackle, crane and tripod. It was edged up the slippery bank and blocked to keep it from losing ground, and was finally brought back onto the roadway.

The bus itself was not badly damaged, but the trucks were torn from beneath it. It was returned to the city by the Brummett towing truck. Rear trucks were placed under it, and the front portion was carried on the towing crane. The bus was returned to the Olsen garage, where it will be repaired.

Unoiiled Roads are Frozen and Rough

Northern Highways Still Icy: Flood Waters are Going Down

The Jacksonville Auto Club reports that the paved and otherwise improved highways in Central Illinois are in good to excellent condition. The unoiiled dirt roads are frozen now but are quite rough.

Roads in the extreme northern part of the state are still icy. Flood waters near Rockford, Freeport, Galena and Dixon are gradually receding. Ill-2 between Dixon and Byron is the only state highway closed by high water but several other highways have from 1 to ten inches of water over the road. Central and Western Iowa is in the grip of a heavy snow storm which occurred over the past week-end. Drifts several feet high are being ploughed through to open many of the main roads to traffic. Minnesota, North Dakota, Wisconsin and Northern Michigan also report heavy snows in some sections. Most of the roads around Rochester and Minneapolis are in passable condition with snow plows keeping at work where drifting is still in evidence.

Flood conditions in southern Illinois are improving, but it will be some time before Shawneetown emerges from the high water.
On account of the blockade still in effect on US-70 in Arkansas traffic from Springfield to Little Rock and Hot Springs is still being routed via St. Louis and thence on US-67.
The detour on US-41 south of Vincennes, Indiana is scheduled to be lifted today.

The southern route to California via Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas is in good condition at the present time.

Women Plan Work For Business Week

National Women's Week Will Be Observed Locally with Program

The tenth National Business Woman's Week, which is to be observed March 14-20 will mark a decade of endeavor that has focused the eyes of the nation on the Federation. Realizing the importance of civic work the local organization with Miss Hester Burbridge, president and Miss Amelia De Motte, Public Relations committee chairman, are planning a civic program, taking in a study of departments of the city government, legislation, the schools and including a dinner meeting during the week.

Because of numerous requests from clubs in the Federation, the board of directors of the national organization have set the date of the country-wide celebration for October, 1938.

A complete program for the week arranged by the Jacksonville Business and Professional Woman's club will be announced at an early date.

Veteran Mail Stage Driver Tells Tales Of Western Trails

Douglas Day of Jerseyville Had Indian Adventures in Pioneer Days

Jerseyville.—One of the last of the stage drivers of the seventies on the western plains is still living in Jerseyville, Illinois.

The old times in Douglas Day, as competent a driver as ever piloted a bunch of reins over a galloping quartette of mules or horses.

"I went west in 1876," Day said, in talking about the old days on the plains. "My uncle, William Day, and John Schermerhorn went with me to take up claims from the government."

"I got a job driving stage and carrying the mail pouches from Fort Reno to Fort Sill. My stage made the night run, leaving at six o'clock in the evening and getting at the end of the trail about five o'clock the following morning."

"We used mules on this run, four of them, and they were so good at the work, that a driver could doze off to sleep on the mail sacks, when carrying the load on a buckboard. The little mules would hold fast to the trail."

"I recall one time when I had fallen asleep. Suddenly the reins tightened in my hands, and I was awakened to see a blaze of fire creeping down the trail toward us. A bolt of lightning had struck a patch of the prairie some distance away and set the grass on fire."

"The mules had scented the danger, and I was awakened in time to make a wide detour from the beaten trail and escape the blaze."

"Another time I thought I was going to have my scalp lifted. I was dozing on the driver's seat, when suddenly the whoops of a party of Indians roused me. The braves had ridden out of the darkness and grasped the reins of the mules."

"I knew a little of their language and finally learned that they wanted some matches; that a rain storm had put their fire out. I gave them a few matches and they rode off into the night."

"I never had any trouble with the Indians. The ones I contacted were mostly Cheyennes and Arapahoes, and I left the service the season before Sitting Bull made his first raid through the locality."

"I was often stopped on the route by Indians, but they always had a definite purpose and wanted something. When they got what they needed, they would go away without offering to make trouble. Some of the braves would help carry the mail sacks at the end of the run. When you got one of them to take hold of a sack, there was no getting it away from him until he had delivered it."

"I have attended some of the dances of the tribes. To us any of the special dances was just a war dance. The dances would last some times for a week. A brave would dance until he fell exhausted, and then another one would step into his place and carry on."

Concord Class Has Meet in Town Hall

Potluck Supper Served to Members of Golden Circle; Other News Items

Concord.—The Golden Circle class of the Christian Sunday school held an open meeting Tuesday evening at the Morgan hall. A potluck supper was served at 7 o'clock for the members of the class and their families, after which the following program was rendered:

Old Rivals To Clash In Semi-Finals Of Winchester Tournament

Rout Leaves For Peoria Tournament

Play St. Patrick's of Kankakee
In Opening Session at 3 P.M. Today

Rout high's Roaring Rockets will take off this morning at 7 a. m. for Peoria where this afternoon the Rockets will meet St. Patrick's of Kankakee in their first game in the annual state Catholic high school basketball tournament which gets underway in the Peoria Armory at one o'clock.

Coach Wallace Baptist named a squad of ten players to make the trip. Shanahan and Harmon, regular forwards, Perry, center, Hanley and Greg Galtens, guards, probably will make up the starting line-up, and Ted Beernp, Bill Galtens, Henry, McHatten and Dougherty the reserve squad.

The Rockets are paired with one of the tougher teams of the tournament in their first game. Thus far St. Patrick's of Kankakee have won 15 games and lost only three. Two of the three defeats were avenged by later victories. St. Pat's lost to Kankakee high by one point early in the season, and then defeated the high school rivals 20 to 19. They also lost to St. Bede's of Peru, but wiped out that loss with a 37 to 22 victory recently.

Quincy Academy and Moline will open the tournament at 1 p. m., and St. Teresa of Decatur and Highland meet in the second game at 2 p. m. Two Catholics, Springfield and Belleville, will meet in the four o'clock game, with Peru and Freeport winding up the afternoon session. Trinity of Bloomington plays Marion of Aurora in the first game of the night session, Galesburg and Odell meet in the second game, and the host team plays Cairo in the nightcap.

Losers in the first round of play will go into a consolation tournament beginning at 8 o'clock Saturday morning.

Rout will be quartered in the Pere Marquette hotel during its stay in Peoria. The team will make the trip in automobiles driven by the coach and Principal J. E. Coenen. Several carloads of reporters expect to leave here sometime during the morning in order to be on hand for the afternoon games of the tournament.

Fulton of Southern Teachers Has Lead

Wallace of Western Second;
Other I.L.C.B. Scores

Chicago—(AP)—With the end of the basketball season in sight, Derald Fulton of Southern Teachers held a commanding lead in the Illinois Interscholastic Conference basketball scoring figures released today.

The speedy forward had 127 points, composed of 50 field goals and 27 foul tosses, and an 18 point margin over John Wallace of Wesleyan, whose 109 total was good for second place. Carl Schunk of Bradley was third with 106 points. All had played in ten contests, with the figures including Tuesday's games.

Fulton's 50 baskets led the field goal department, but in charity throws the top was shared by Bill Ludwig of Shurtliff and Virgil Fletcher of Illinois College with 30 each.

Merrill Anderson of Augustana had the best average, scoring 97 points in seven contests to come within a hair of getting 14 per game.

SET DATE FOR TRYOUTS
FOR COLLEGE PRIZE

Tryouts for the Illinois College George Gridley Wood prize in Freshman debate will be held on the campus March 3. At that time two teams will be selected for an evening debate in competition for the prize fund.

The question will be: Resolved—That the extension of consumer co-operatives would contribute to the public welfare.

ISSUE 500 INVITATIONS

Chicago—(AP)—More than 500 invitations to the 14th annual National Catholic Interscholastic Basketball tournament to be held March 17-21 at Loyola University were mailed today by the tourney director, the Rev. Bernard A. Ready.

Regional tourney winners and teams selected on records will comprise a field of 32 for the championship bracket.

8:30 Jerseyville vs. Troy.

Jerseyville, Feb. 25—Piling up an imposing array of points, Jerseyville tonight got over a hurdle in its own district tournament by eliminating Bethalto, a Madison county school, by a score of 49 to 24.

Chesterfield ran over St. Jacobs 40 to 21, and Troy beat Shipman 34 to 25.

Jerseyville fans face another big moment Friday night when the locals go up against Troy in the second game of the evening.

The score of the Jerseyville-Bethalto skirmish follows:

CHAPTER I

THE June sun struck his shoulders with pleasant warmth as he parted the brush, bridged a wide ditch easily and emerged on the open backwoods road.

He squinted eyes a trifle deeper but of the same clear blue as the sky above him. And squinting, his tanned face broke into little crinkles around his eyes and into unaccustomed furrows on a broad brow that was lighter where the line of his hair began. He thrust his hands into breeches pockets, squared his shoulders and swung into a brisk stride.

Over his shoulder he addressed his companion: "Getting on toward lunch." He was agreed with, he gathered, by the enthusiastic tail wagging at the heels of his riding boots.

"Now, my good fellow," he continued, having an appreciative audience, "if this were the New England of legend, we would approach the next dwelling with a pleasant smile and a hungry look and be invited to join the family at its noonday meal. As it is, we've got to find our way out of this maze of backwoods and push on to our host's."

He glanced at his watch, saw that it was 20 minutes past noon. Then he saw the spreading gables of the gray house through a frame of trees and whistled softly to himself.

It brought a light to his eyes—this picture of majestic chimneys that rose to the tops of aged trees, the grace of dwelling and grounds mellowing together and growing into each other, the overtones of bright pinks and yellows, the blues obscured against the glowing greens of the garden, colors that were like bright ribbons on a lady's gray gown.

There was, as he had expected, a wall of field stone hip high. He swung himself onto it. "It's a ha' past twelve, Miss Daphne," a strident voice from within the house echoed. "What-cha want for lunch?"

Daphne Brett pushed back a strand of black curly hair from a white and perspiring brow and sat back on her heels.

"If you've brought eggs, there'll be scrambled eggs, bread and butter and fruit. I didn't bring anything else from town," she called from the top of the stair wall.

Then, anxiously: "PRUNELLA, have a look at how the garden's coming, will you?"

"Yes, ma'am," Prunella answered cheerfully. "Just stop worryin' about this downstairs. I got things most ready. Sure you don't want me to give you a hand up there?"

Daphne rubbed the spot in her back that was beginning to burn and said, "No, thanks, I'll be finished here by three. They won't be here until four."

"My sakes, but it'll seem strange to have anybody but Brett's livin' in this house," the conversational voice continued from below.

"You're telling me!" Daphne Brett muttered and gave her mop a vicious squeeze.

"We allus hoped you'd be comin' back to Plantport when Jennifer was graduated from that finishin' school," Prunella carried on. "We will some day soon,"

Illustration by E. H. Gunder

"Hello," he said before she could ask him what he wanted. "Will you please tell me who owns this place?" "It's owned by the Misses Brett," she said shortly.

Daphne answered with a cheerful smile she didn't feel. Her disappointment filled her unhappily again. She, too, had hoped that the two of them would be back here. Five years away from the home she loved hadn't changed her affection and longing for it. Five crowded, busy years in New York. Five years hoping for this very month until Jennifer's letter had come saying that she was going on to Maine to spend the summer with a schoolmate and could Daphne send her an extra hundred?

"Hi!" Prunella straightened and her eyes followed the halting voice to the figure seated on the back garden wall. Another tramp, she thought, and took another look. She retreated hastily and called: "Miss Daphne, one of 'em's come. He's out back."

The company she was waiting for would hardly be "out back," Daphne thought, and stole a hurried glance out the south window, saw the dusty figure on her garden wall and knew it to be not the round Mr. Snyder she had already met. Without removing the unflattering towel that bound her hair, or the grimy effects of her morning's work, oblivious to the shapelessness of her slender figure enveloped in one of Prunella's pink gingham models, she went into the garden.

"Hello," he said before she could ask him what he wanted. "Will you tell me who owns this place?" "It's owned by the Misses Brett," she said shortly. He didn't look at her plainly his eyes were all for Brett Hall. "I'd like to see the interior," he said. "Also I'd like to have a bit of lunch. Do you think the Misses Brett are hospitably inclined?"

"There's nothing but scrambled eggs," Daphne said, her eyes once more on her watch. There was so much to be done in so short a time. She had no time to exchange pleasantries with stray travelers of the road, but this one looked strong. Perhaps he . . .

He let himself down from the wall before she said anything further and, with his eyes still on the house, he said, "Thanks, and what might your name be, my pretty maid?"

"THEY call me Duffy," she said crisply, and picked up her broom. "You might earn that lunch by tackling the weeds in the west garden. This place has got to look like a well-kept garden by 3 o'clock. Prunella will give you your lunch in the kitchen."

"Fair enough," he said, and tucked his pipe into a pocket of the coat he discarded at once.

Daphne forgot him. There were many things to be done. There were the bowls to fill with flowers and Daphne herself to transform from a scullery maid into a cool, charming hostess in a smart frock to give the appearance of a gentleman's family estate for the summer.

"But we want to lease it for a year!" Mrs. Snyder said. A year at a hundred a month!

Daphne, all too conscious of what that sum meant, couldn't rise to acceptance while her eyes and ears were assaulted by the ravages being wrought by the small Snyder brood. Determinedly she kept her eyes from the mahogany table where she could hear the rasp of a scratching spoon. She resented hearing the kicking, destructive twins. She didn't want these people living in her house, but how else was she to meet her need?

Feebly, she heard herself saying, "I didn't wish to rent for more than the summer months. Also, there is . . . someone else who has asked me to give him a little time to decide." Her voice trailed off weakly.

There was a distinctly cold silence. And then a firm footfall sounded on the gravel path. A long shadow fell across the polished floor.

"Good afternoon," the voice she had last encountered in her garden greeted them smoothly. "I've come back to tell you I've decided to accept your terms, Miss Brett. A hundred and fifty a month is quite agreeable."

Daphne's dark eyes met two bright twinkling blue ones with a question in them.

She started, recovered, and hesitated in that one brief second. "Oh, how do you do, Mr. . . . Mr. Van Dusen. I was just talking about you." She said it very fast.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

DAPHNE BRETT, good-looking, successful young New York advertising executive, decides to rent the beautiful Connecticut estate her father left her when he was killed in a hunting accident. She needs the money after five years of providing for the education of her younger sister, JENNIFER, who has just finished college.

Daphne spends a day house-cleaning at the estate preparatory to showing it. She is almost forced into renting to an undesirable family when an attractive young man she has never seen before hops over the garden wall, asks for a bit of lunch, and later comes to her rescue, offering to rent it himself.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER II

DAPHNE BRETT saw twelve hundred dollars float out her window and was relieved. Not but what she would feel very differently when the Snyders departed and she was once more faced with the inescapable truth that she needed it badly.

For the time, she permitted herself the luxury of that relief and was glad the shadows of late afternoon filled the drawing-room when she introduced "Mr. Van Dusen"—the name had been the first to spring to her mind—to the Snyders. He might not have appeared in a brighter light so perfectly turned out in the riding clothes he wore with careless grace.

"A hundred and fifty a month!" Mrs. Snyder fluffed the lace of her jabot. "Well, I'm sure I don't blame you, Miss Brett."

Daphne's unexpected visitor, looking up from his tea-cup, glanced at Daphne and addressed himself with surprise-tinted tones. "Look here, how stupid of me! You're the people who wanted the place before I saw it?"

"Oh, no," Daphne said quickly. "That was . . . er . . . someone else who wanted to buy. Mr. and Mrs. Snyder wanted to rent for a year but I . . . I told them I had promised to give you time to make up your mind."

There was no mistaking the appeal in her face, or the meaning of her words. The dark eyes and the bright blue eyes traveled at the same moment to the youngest Snyder and her fruitless effort to prevent a dab of sandwich filling from slipping down her pinafore with awful certainty to the handsome brocade of the sofa.

That settled it. Blue eyes addressed himself to Mrs. Snyder with the charm of a diplomatic attache. "If I were not so selfish, I should make the now-impossible gesture of turning the place over to a lady who would lend it greater grace."

MRS. SNYDER adjusted her laces and her smile. "Did you hear that, Henry?" she asked her husband and returned to more flattering attention. "Tell me," she said, "are you by any chance related to the South Orange Van Dusens?"

Looking exceedingly regretful, he said that he wasn't. "We're Virginians," he said. "This is my first introduction to Connecticut and I mean to make the most of it."

"I'm sure you will," she said graciously. "Come along, Henry, we've got to be getting back. Anyway, we've enjoyed the visit, Miss Brett, and I'm pleased to have met

"Tomorrow," Daphne said coldly. "I am not entertaining. I'm a working girl. I shall be back in New York at my job." The information slipped out.

you, Mr. Van Dusen. Shall I tell the South Orange . . . that is, my friends, who you are?" "By all means," he replied with a quick and dazzling smile. "I'm Derek Van Dusen."

Daphne walked to the road where the Snyders had left their car, saw them off with a mutual exchange of goodbyes and hoped that Prunella was, by now, in the drawing-room where the combination of her mother's finest silver and the presence of an unknown young man did not make for a feeling of security.

A man who would ask for a handout at the back door, turn up in strange circumstances four hours later and slip with such suspicious ease into the role of employer of an impostor, had all the earmarks of being a dangerous character. Why was he hanging around her house all day? He didn't look like a tramp certainly with his fine clothes and manners but after all, the depression had turned up strange types. Daphne hastened her footsteps.

He was, she was relieved to see, sitting in Tom Brett's chair turning the pages of a magazine when she entered.

"Well," he said, looking up at her brightly and rising, "shall we estimate the damage?"

"There has been some, hasn't there?" she answered ruefully, and noted, surreptitiously, that all the silver seemed to be on the tray.

It hurt her eyes to see the spreading grease spot on the gold brocade, the jagged scratch on the satin surface of the mahogany table. The crumbs didn't matter that. Or that he knew that a fra-nor the broken glass. Her slender finger traced a zig-zag on the table and found a companion in the finger that marked her gesture.

"It will be easy to fix that," he said and for the first time a feeling of gratitude stirred Daphne. "I oughtn't to ask you questions," she said when they both sat down. "I ought to say 'thank you.'"

"Forget it," he said. "Mind if I smoke?"

DAPHNE shook her head and watched the practiced way in which he filled the bowl, tamped down the tobacco and applied the match. No fumbling gestures. She liked that.

He drew on the pipe for a moment and then: "Shoot."

"Shoot?" Daphne had forgotten what she was going to say. "Questions," he answered briefly. "Let's have them. Or shall I start?"

Daphne was startled and annoyed. Why should he question her?

"Did you want to rent to those people?"

"No, I did not!" "Just as I surmised," he said. "But I don't understand . . ."

He paid no attention. "However, you should have, shouldn't you?" Daphne swished cold tea around in her cup before answering. "No, not really," she said and was elaborately casual. No need to tell this stranger her business.

"Good! I feel better about it now," he didn't believe her but Daphne couldn't have guessed that. Or that he knew that a fragile girl like herself did not indulge in the kind of work she had been doing when he had mistaken her for a maid, unless she was pretty hard up. Nor did the gesture of serving tea to the Snyders escape him.

"You did a very fine job of helping me," she said and wondered how she could invite him to go.

"Oh, the Van Dusens—the Virginia Van Dusens, not the South Orange Van Dusens, mind you—go about constantly, rescuing ladies in distress with the greatest of ease."

"Yes, I noticed that," she said. "I mean the ease. What else do you do when you just 'go about'?"

"Contemplate the cosmos," he said pleasantly.

"That's approximately what I thought," she said pleasantly. "Tell me what else you thought," he encouraged.

"Were the scrambled eggs to the taste of the Van Dusens?" she asked pointedly.

"Excellent," he said graciously. "Plentiful and fresh but, my dear girl, no Worcestershire seasoning!"

"An oversight," Daphne said with a fine edge of sarcasm. "The next time you come to lunch, do let us know beforehand."

"I will," he promised. "What about tomorrow?"

"TOMORROW," Daphne said coldly. "I am not entertaining. I'm a working girl. I shall be back in New York at my job." She stopped thinking and said sternly: "Much as the country and the open road appeal to me, it's a luxury I can't afford."

"I can't either," he said and sighed.

Daphne's suspicions were immediately confirmed in her mind. "I see," she said, conveying nothing.

"I, too, have a job in the city but I shall forget its confinement when I return to this peaceful loveliness each night."

Daphne sat up very straight. Oh, why had she told him that she was not to be here?

"That's our arrangement, isn't it?" he inquired easily. "At a hundred and fifty a month?" Her words had a smart sting.

"Certainly. I said I agreed to your terms. I'd like to take it over at once for occupancy until October first."

It rather took Daphne's breath away. It had possibilities of also taking away her problem. Against her better judgment, she threw discretion to the winds.

"Would you," she asked leaning forward so he saw the hope in her dark eyes, "would you really like to rent Brett Hall?"

"I thought it was all settled," he answered calmly.

"Then . . . then it is." "You'll want references," of course. "Of course," she said, wishing she had thought of it first. "Unfortunately they'll prove that my name isn't Van Dusen. It isn't even Derek. It's Smith," he said, looking at her reproachfully. "How could you have missed it?"

Daphne permitted herself a smile. "It was too obvious, which you are not," she said. (To Be Continued)

Something New in Store for the Shopping Housewife

Clarence Saunders, upper right, who has made and lost two fortunes in retail grocery business, believes he has the key to a third success in his new "key-doodle" store in Memphis, Tenn. The new idea permits customers to "unlock" goods they want with a long key, as illustrated by woman in upper left photo. Then, at the front of the store a clerk, as shown at right, inserts the customer's key in a master keyhole and the purchases are delivered to the desk by belt conveyor, emerging from square hole at the clerk's right. At the same time, the bill is totaled automatically. Saunders, one-time Clarksville, Tenn., grocery clerk, made his first fortune with a self-serve grocery, lost it in Wall Street. Later he made and lost another fortune in the grocery business.

Barge Line Boats To Begin Moving On Illinois Again

Flood Waters Check Federal Boats Coming Up the Mississippi

Beardstown.—Within the next few days it is expected that the first of the regular federal barge line tows will be seen passing this city on the Illinois river headed for Peoria and Chicago.

High water in the Mississippi held back one of the towboat fleets which headed for Peoria last week and high water on the Ohio river helped the other one.

The federal barge line fleet left New Orleans, Feb. 13, and faced the very tip of the flood crest which brought so much damage on the Ohio river valley area. Progress against the flood was slow and the fleet made less than 500 miles during the week. It is due to reach Peoria March 4.

The Ohio River company's fleet of coal barges, however, made fast time down the Ohio river, but was checked at Cairo, Feb. 16. Since then the big towboat Kenna has been bucking the Mississippi. She was due at Grafton Sunday and is slated to go through to Havana by Thursday.

Friday she is to open navigation through Peoria Lake enroute to Chicago. Ice in Peoria Lake is reported to be less than 4 inches thick and is badly honeycombed, being expected to go out any day.

J. Noll Staff Named Alternate Appointee

Will Go to St. Louis Next Week to Take Examination for West Point

J. Noll Staff of this city, son of Dr. and Mrs. L. E. Staff, has been named the first alternate appointee to the West Point military academy by Rep. Scott W. Lucas, according to word received here Thursday. Joseph Citron, of Manitowish, has been named the principal appointee.

Staff, who is a graduate of Jacksonville high school and who is now attending Brown's Business College here, will go to St. Louis Tuesday to take the entrance examination for the military academy.

Citron, who was named as principal, will have the first opportunity to accept the appointment for this congressional district if he passes the examination. If he should fail to qualify for the appointment, Staff will receive the second opportunity.

TO ATTEND MEETING

Miss Charlotte Sieber, 1019 Grove street left Thursday afternoon for a visit over the week-end with her sister, Mrs. E. E. Sobern, in Bloomington. On Saturday evening Miss Sieber will attend the MacMurray Alumnae group meeting, when an interesting program will be given for graduates and former students of the college.

Fruit Men Predict Good Apple Crop in Illinois Orchards

Experts Here Yesterday Also Say Prospects for a Peach Yield Poor

Prospects for a high yield of apples this year are good, according to Victor W. Kelly, University extension specialist on fruits, and S. C. Chandler, state field entomologist, who met with horticulturists of this county at the Farm Bureau yesterday. The experts discussed their problems with fruit growers and orchardists of the county who came in for conferences.

They explained that indications point to a heavy bloom on apple trees this spring, and if weather conditions are right for pollination, the yield of fruit should be above the average. Scale on the trees was practically killed by the intense cold a year ago and has not recovered sufficiently to do great damage.

The fruit specialists discussed spraying problems, fertilizing of trees and other matters with the growers. They commented on indications for a poor peach crop. Although this is not a peach growing section, the people depend largely on southern Illinois for their supplies.

Kelly and Chandler said that in the extreme southern part of the state, 75 to 95 per cent of the peach buds are already dead. The unusually warm weather in December and January caused them to develop too far, and the colder weather which followed killed them.

In the Centennial area, extending from Centralia to Olney, the damage is not so great, but about half the buds are dead. This will mean a fair crop unless something else happens to damage it before it can mature.

Lift Quarantine on State Institutions Located in This City

The quarantine which has blanketed all state institutions in this city since January 3, was lifted Thursday by A. L. Bowen, director of the Department of Public Welfare. The order, rescinding the order of January 2 which placed a ban on visiting and gatherings of patients and students with persons from outside the institutions, is effective immediately.

Managing officers of the three local institutions regarded the step taken by the director of the Welfare Department to prevent contagion from spreading in their institutions as successful. Health records at Jacksonville State Hospital and Illinois School for the Deaf have been exceptionally good despite the large amount of contagious diseases which have been noticed outside the institutions.

The order Thursday notified the managing officers of the institutions, Dr. G. C. Brown at the State Hospital, Dr. D. T. Cloud at Illinois School for the Deaf and Dr. R. W. Woolston, of Illinois School for the Blind, that normal visiting periods may be resumed.

The initial order placing the institutions in quarantine restricted visiting at any of the institutions except in case of serious illness and restricted employees of these institutions from mingling with crowds.

Although the quarantine restricted somewhat the programs carried out in these institutions to which the public is invited, the results were gratifying. Dr. Cloud stated that sickness has been kept at an unusually low figure during the period at the School for the Deaf. Influenza got a foothold shortly after the students returned from their Christmas vacation period, but careful watching prevented an epidemic, and the disease was quickly stamped out. The peak of the epidemic was between 30 and 40 cases, but declined rapidly, and was of short duration.

Employees of the institutions welcomed the news with enthusiasm.

Ontario Officials Plan Normal Life For Dionne Quints

Believes They Should Now Be Returned to Parents; Soon Be Millionaires

Toronto.—(P)—The Ontario government—like a father who sees his children growing up—planned a future "normal life" today for the Dionne quintuplets with their reunited family.

David A. Croil, welfare minister of the province, who has made the famous babes virtually millionaires in the two years he has been their special guardian, outlined the plans for their future yesterday in speaking for a bill to relieve him of his stewardship.

At present, Croil said, the five sisters are worth $543,946.39 in government bonds or government guaranteed securities, and in two more years will be worth $1,000,000.

Contracts already signed will bring in $200,000 a year for the next two years, he said in explaining the Ontario government's desire to see Olivia and Elzira Dionne have more of a share in the life of their children.

"They have wealth, they have money," he said, "what they need most of all is a normal domestic life, association with their brothers and sisters, the love and discipline which their parents alone can completely provide."

"There is no substitute for a mother. Let them in these formative years have a little normality in their lives." He said he hoped the parents would assume a larger responsibility for the education and religious training of the children who will be three years old May 28.

THREE AIRMEN ESCAPE DEATH IN PERU JUNGLE

Lima, Peru, Feb. 25.—(P)—Static-filled wireless messages crackling through from a jungle town almost in the heart of the South American continent described today the dramatic escape of three airmen, forced down 23 days ago.

The trio—Captain Americo Vargas and two passengers—were safe at Puerto Maldonado, small township in the midst of the jungle. But to reach there they traveled more than 120 miles, most of it by makeshift raft, the reports, received from Puerto Maldonado, said.

Captain Vargas told how he was forced to land in an isolated spot deep in the jungle when the plane flew into a heavy storm. He brought the ship down on the Lydya, a small stream which flows into the upper Piedras river.

Sheriff Takes Three Men to State Farm

Will Begin Serving Terms Imposed in Court Here for Misdeeds

Sheriff Kenneth Woods and Deputy Charles Wegehoff went yesterday to Vandallia where they delivered three men who have been inmates of the county jail for some time.

Gerald Meyers, sentenced on a charge of issuing cold checks, Alonzo Pitts and Leonard Angelo, sentenced on charges of larceny of coal, were taken to the farm.

The sheriff has been unable until this week to take any of the prisoners to the farm because of the crowded condition there.

and taken to the county jail at nearby East View.

Mallette said Vandembush admitted complicity in the robbery of the Seymour State bank at Seymour, Wis., Aug. 19, 1936.

Midwestern records showed Vandembush escaped with Brunette from the London, Ohio, prison farm last July while serving a 5 to 15-year sentence for assault with intent to rob.

Vandembush spent from 1918 to 1925 in the Waukesha, Wis., industrial school as an incorrigible and from 1927 to 1930 was in the Green Bay, Wis., reformatory for forgery.

Pickets Encircle Elgin Case Plant

Elgin, Ill., Feb. 25.—(P)—Marching pickets encircled the Illinois Watch Case Company plant today and more than 700 members of the Jewelry Workers Union steadfastly insisted they would not return to work until demands for recognition, higher wages and a 40-hour week had been met.

Louis Eppenstein, president of the company, passed through the picket line without incident, and just as steadfastly refused to deal with the union strikers who have tied up his business so long as they are headed by non-employees.

L. W. Beman, regional director of the National Labor Relations Board, said "things are standing pretty tight," following a long conference with Eppenstein and other company officials.

Early today four non-union employees attempted to get through the picket line, but were rebuffed. Another tried to elude the vigilant strikers by climbing the high fence about the plant, but lost his toe held, cutting his arm on a strand of the wire. Pickets sent him to a hospital for treatment.

Hungarian Miners Are "Almost Dead"

Pecs, Hungary, Feb. 25.—(P)—Two men who escaped past pickets armed with hatchets in a strike-locked coal mine tonight said several of their 265 comrades below the surface were "almost dead."

Peace negotiation attempts remained deadlocked. The strikers refused to enter a conference when they learned work was going on in other pits.

Tonight's report by the two who reached the surface gave first indication of the condition of the hunger-striking. The men staying underground reported dominated by a militant minority, said they would starve their 400 ponies along with themselves unless their pay increase demands were met.

The strike is aimed at an increase in the daily pay from $1 to $1.20.

Two members of parliament arrived today but were reported afraid to risk descent into the mine. Earlier the strikers restored communication to the surface for a short period to ask that a trade union committee be sent down to hear their terms. The request was refused by authorities.

SCRIBBLERS CLUB HAS MEETING AT COLLEGE

ALLEY OOP

A Few Ounces of Prevention

By HAMLIN

Now that King Gizzle has again regained his crown, following the strange disappearance of the invaders, well turn back to where we left Alley Oop.

Still wearing the remnants of a jungle catskin, Alley Oop peeks down from his place of concealment at the still form of his late antagonist, King Wuz, who has been struck down by his own men.

By Golly he's still alive, in spite of that awful clout on the skull! Well, till fix him so he won't go anywhere when he comes to.

There now, that'll hold 'im for a spell! Oh, ho! I didn't get this rigged up any too soon. He's beginning to come around.

Ooh my head!

Slight Rise Noted In Trade on Stocks

New York, Feb. 25.—(U. S. Dept. Agr.)—The stock market made a start ahead today, but slipped before getting very far.

As trading got under way metals spurred on a rise in prices for copper, tin, zinc and lead. Joining them on the rise were steels, motors and rails.

Although merchandising issues held gains stubbornly as the session drew to a close, other groups fell back under what brokers described as selling by professional traders.

The Associated Press average decline 0.3 of a point to 71.9. Transactions totaled 2,227,830 shares, compared with 2,083,990 Wednesday.

Brokerage observers said market sentiment was mixed. Reflecting this, they said, was the fact net declines and gains were in approximate balance.

Arresting considerable attention and symptomatic of increased public participation in the market, Wall Street circles said, was the brisk trading in low-priced shares, including several which have not usually been among the most active group.

Cash oats were 2-1 cent lower; shipping sales 46,000 bushels; none booked to arrive; receipts 10 cars.

Chinch Bugs May Limit Barley Acreage in State
Threat of chinch bug damage may limit barley production in Illinois this year following the production last year of a $2,646,000 crop representing an increase of 38 per cent over the amount harvested in 1935, according to G. H. Dungan, associate chief in crop production, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

Although chinch bug threats make prospects for spring barley poor in some sections of central Illinois, the institution is only spotted in the northern tier of counties where barley growing may be undertaken with comparative safety this season, he explained. The 1936 crop amounted to 2,700,000 bushels.

As an aid to farmers of the state in selecting spring barley varieties best adapted to different sections, the agricultural college is conducting annual varietal tests at DaKarb in northern Illinois and at Urbana in central Illinois.

The variety best adapted to Illinois from the standpoint of both quality of grain and yield per acre is Wisconsin 63, tests have shown. The variety is sometimes called Wisconsin Barless. It is a smooth-bearded, six-rowed barley, somewhat later maturing than most varieties although it comes into a head at about the same time as other varieties. It is moderately well adapted to the conditions of high in malting and brewing tests. It is highly resistant to the stripe disease and is above the average in resistance to smut.

Trebli is a rough-bearded, six-rowed barley. It is objected to by the maltster and is undesirable for pearling. Even a slight mixture of Trebli with a variety otherwise suited for malting makes the crop unsalable except for feed grain. Velvet, Glabron, Spartan and Black Barless are the other leading varieties. Velvet is satisfactory for malting, but Glabron is objected to for this purpose. Spartan is a stiff-strawed, early-maturing, free-stooling type suited for pearling. Black beardless is unsuited either for malting or for pearlings.

The better varieties of barley on both the Dekalb and Urbana fields yield more pounds of grain than do Kheron and Dungan pointed out. Furthermore, barley has 10 per cent less hull than oats.

Barley does best when sowed on plowed land, he said. Seeding barley among cornstalks on disced land is a sure way to invite scab disease. A crop infected with scab can not be fed satisfactorily to horses and hogs and is not acceptable for malting.

Maltsters claim the wheat and barley is scab and blight-free, it is rated very highly for use in malting and will command a premium on the market.

All barleys in the college's variety tests were seeded with a drill at the rate of eight pecks an acre on fall plowed cornstalk land. Time of seeding at Urbana during the past eight years has averaged March 12. Early seeding is necessary for success in the central part of the state. Barley may be sowed somewhat later in the northern part of Illinois, but even in that section comparatively early sowing is advisable.

Detailed results of the variety tests may be obtained by writing the College of Agriculture. The college also has information available on sources of seed supplies for small grains.

Smaller Loadings Boost Hog Prices
Chicago, Feb. 25.—(U. S. Dept. Agr.)—An overnight cut in hog loadings gave sellers in the local market the upper hand today. Trade was fairly active, and prices finished 10 to 15 cents higher than yesterday's average. Receipts were 13,000, of which 5,000 were billed directly to the big packers.

Today's top price was $10.15, and the bulk of choice hogs, weights brought $9.95-10.10. Good sows sold strong to a dime up, while pigs were steady.

There was dependable trade in all fat steers and yearlings. The market was strong with instances of a 25 cents upturn in price. Vealers were generally strong, and shipper kind brought increases of 25 to 50 cents.

Fat lambs finished slow but up 25 to 35 cents. Fat sheep had price increases of 10 to 15 cents.

Half Million Dollars Voted For New Four-H Buildings At State Fair Grounds; Economics and Livestock Buildings Planned; Baby Boa in Banana Crate

The Illinois house of representatives Wednesday noon voted an appropriation of $555,000 to improve the state fair grounds by construction of facilities for 4-H club and junior department.

Facilities specified in the bill include a junior department home economics building, junior department livestock building, addition to the sheep building, service building and incinerator. Completion of the program as a WPA project is considered a possibility.

Baby Boa Constrictor In Banana Crate
Fred King, a truck driver for the Hannibal Produce company, had a queer mascot along with him on one of his trips last week. It was a baby South American snake which had been found in a crate of bananas that King was trucking.

The reptile was more than two feet long and seemingly was in a dormant state and made no effort to bite. It appeared to be an infant of the python or constrictor type. It was brownish in color, with black markings on its back.

The baby reptile has since been identified by Wesley W. Minear, biology teacher at Quincy, as a young boa constrictor and has been added, temporarily, to the collection of Quincy Senior high school. Robert A. Evers, instructor in biology, has the snake imprisoned in a wire-topped wooden box.

Pike Livestock at National Market
Smart & Dolbow, well known hog raisers of Pittsfield, were represented in the trade at National Stock Yards on February 15 with a shipment of 43 hogs that averaged 262 pounds and topped the market at $10.40 per cwt.

Vera Griggs of Perry topped the market the same day with a shipment of 10 hogs that averaged 212 pounds and sold at $10.40 cwt.

George Stickman of Pittsfield sold a bunch of 24 choice porkers on February 15 that averaged 198 pounds and topped the market at $10.40.

B. F. Goodin & Son of Pittsfield were on the market February 15 with a shipment of 22 medium heifers that averaged 531 pounds, and sold at $8.00 cwt. Twenty hogs in the shipment also sold through Producers to top the market at $10.40 cwt.

Reports Damage to Wheat In Nutwood
Clifford Schudel, supervisor of Richwood township in Jersey county, who operates a large farm in the Nutwood Drainage and Levee district, reports that the wheat in the locality where he lives has been seriously damaged by winter killing.

"Freezing and thawing of the ground so frequently during January and February," stated Schudel, "has caused the plant to 'spew up' and one may walk along a row of wheat and just gather the plants without pulling a spear."

"I am planning to drill oats on the wheat acreage when soil conditions permit. I shall use a disc drill and not do any preliminary pulverizing or harrowing. In that manner the wheat still alive will come up with the oats, and the two threshed together will make an excellent grain ration for livestock. There will be enough protein in the wheat that is left to make a well balanced feed."

Weather Forecast Drops Wheat Bids

Chicago, Feb. 25.—(U. S. Dept. Agr.)—Wheat tumbled three cents a bushel today to the lowest level since early this month before enough buying developed to erase about half of the loss.

The market's break was attributed largely to forecast of fresh moisture in the southwestern wheat belt. The subsequent rally followed advices in disheartening revival of European demand in the world export wheat market.

Other grains followed wheat's downturn, with May rice dropping five cents at one time, the maximum allowed in one day. Quotations in most pits were the lowest in almost a month and May oats was the lowest in three months.

Wheat closed 18-11 cents below yesterday's finish, May 130 1/2, July 131 1/2 September 130 1/2, and corn was 4-1 off, May 1.05-06, July 1.01-02, September 94 1/2. Oats lost 2 1/2 May 46-46 1/2, rice 11-44, May 1.03, and provisions were 2 cents off to 10 cents up.

Life in Philippine Islands Discussed At Kiwanis Meet

Prof. B. F. Landuyt Is Speaker at Thursday Session of Clubmen

While nature was miserly in her distribution of large, wild animals in the Philippine Islands she was more generous in her gifts of plant life and insects, said Prof. B. F. Landuyt, of Illinois college, in an address at the Thursday meeting of the local Kiwanis club at the Peacock Inn. Professor Landuyt drew from his own experiences in the islands in describing life in the Philippines. He taught school there for four years.

There are two seasons in the islands, six months of rain and six months of dry weather. There are two unusual things about the weather—they are the heavy rainfall which lasts days without interruption and the typhoons.

There are practically no large animals on the islands, he stated. The animal life includes the water buffalo, monkeys, hogs, deer and a few small wildcats. While the distribution of animals on the islands was not great nature was not miserly in providing insects, said Prof. Landuyt. Mosquitoes are large and plentiful and ants run rampant, particularly in the rainy season, when they are driven indoors. All types of plant life are abundant.

The Filipino is primarily a farmer, and small land owner with rice being the principal food of the people. This grain is sown and cultivated by hand.

Many Dialects

So many races have been inhabitants upon the islands that there are now many dialects spoken, which creates a problem that confronts the islands' nationalistic plans. Homes are built on poles five or six feet off the ground for two purposes. One is to keep the floors of the homes above the water, the other is to get above the garbage. Pigs run at random and act as scavengers.

The inhabitants of the islands have two recreations they enjoy, the celebration of holidays and gambling. They celebrate all American, Filipino and church holidays with programs of dancing and cock fighting.

Ninety per cent of the inhabitants of the islands are Catholic, and in all religions there is much superstition. One of their practices is to whip themselves for having committed sins. This form of punishment is provided in a severe manner. "How they whip it I don't know," said Prof. Landuyt, "since they beat themselves until their backs bleed."

The speaker told of a group of people characterized as the "head hunters," or mountain people. They are fond of head hunting. It is the practice, said the speaker, to not feed the dogs for days and then give them an abundance of rice and cook them thus providing a dish of stuffed dogs.

Seven Heavens There are a few persons who profess the Mohammedan religion and a few who embrace the Protestant faiths. The Mohammedans are Mohammedans in name only. They believe in seven heavens and their religion teaches them they will go to the seventh heaven if they die while killing a Christian. The result of this is that on some occasions a Mohammedan who desires to die, or commit suicide, will engage in a Christian slaughtering campaign so that a Christian policeman will kill him.

Guests at the meeting yesterday included J. H. Dial and Homer Wood. Announcement was made of plans for a benefit show to be given March 29-30 by the club. Hugh Green made a report of the recent ladies night meeting.

Frankfurter, born in Vienna, Austria, Nov. 15, 1882, came to America in 1894.

I. C. Swimmers to Meet Loyola U. In Tank Contest

College Group to Seek First Victory Saturday at Chicago

Illinois College swimmers will seek their first victory of the present season tomorrow when they meet the Loyola University tanksters at Chicago. The Blueboys weighed anchor early this morning and expect to reach the windy city in time for a workout and a good night's rest before the meet which will take place sometime tomorrow afternoon or evening, the exact time not being known.

The Illinois swimmers have had two meets so far this year. They lost the first one to Indiana U. In the second, they took the majority of the first places, but lack of enough men to count up with seconds and thirds dragged them down to a second place behind Washington University of St. Louis. Wesleyan came in third in this meet. There have been no conference tilts as yet, but the Blueboys have practically the same team that won the Little 100 championship last year.

Cochin Nussipinkel will be about the same men in each event that he has been using previously this season. The lineups are never definite, however, until the actual time of the meet. Larry Corrigan, the big boy who transferred to I. C. last fall and has been undefeated in four races so far, will probably swim in the 100 and 220 yard free styles and a couple of relays. Captain Glen Freeman will appear in the 50 and the 100 free styles with a relay thrown in for good measure. Ray Bennett will get into a relay and the 100. Dan Stucka, short distance star, will churn his way through 50 and a relay. Patterson will participate in the backstroke events, his specialty, and Frank Kalteaux will probably keep him company. Dick Korevec will get in the 220 yard free style.

Ed Timko, one of the main stays of the last year's team who has been unable to work out for a long time because of illness, will get into his first meet of the year tomorrow, swimming in the 100 and 50 yard free styles and one of the relays.

The Blueboys have just two more meets scheduled after the Loyola tangle. Next week end there will be a quadrangular splash fest at Monmouth, with the conference championship being decided on March 20.

GUNN FUNERAL AT MURRAYVILLE TODAY

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary A. Gunn, well known resident of Murrayville, will be held at the Methodist church there this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Interment will be made in Murrayville cemetery.

Skyscraper School 150 Years Old

"The school that grew up instead of out" is the theme of the University of Pittsburgh's 150th anniversary celebration, scheduled from Feb. 28 to commencement week in June. From a log cabin, lower left, with a half-dozen students in 1787, the institution has grown to embrace 17 divisions, occupying a 42-story, 10-million-dollar Cathedral of Learning, right, near downtown Pittsburgh. Sponsor of the skyscraper school idea is John G. Bowman, upper left, who has been chancellor of the university since 1910.

Cass Sheriff Asks Liquor Permit But Statute Says "No"

Gus Campbell Cannot Have Interest in Tavern As Public Official

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 25.—(P)—Attorney General Otto Kerner ruled today that under the Illinois liquor control act, a liquor license could not be issued to a sheriff.

C. G. Colburn of Virginia, Ill., state's attorney of Cass county, in asking for the ruling, said the sheriff in his county had decided to purchase and operate a night club and asked that a liquor license be issued for his premises but in the name of another person.

Colburn had held that the license should not be issued.

Kerner's opinion cited the Illinois liquor control act which provides that "no law enforcing public official shall in any way be interested in the sale of alcoholic liquor."

The Cass county state's attorney said yesterday that Sheriff Gus Campbell made application to the Cass county board of supervisors two weeks ago for a license to operate the Beardstown-Virginia Country club tavern.

Chairman Gus A. Carl of the board of supervisors, who also is chairman of the liquor control commission of Cass county, sought advice from Colburn as to the legal status of a sheriff conducting a liquor business during his tenure of office.

Attorney General Kerner's opinion was a result of Colburn's request for a statement on the law.

Introduce Bills to Increase Pay of Police, Firemen

State Representatives Sponsor Measures for Salaries Boost

If bills which have been introduced in the Illinois legislature at Springfield become laws, Jacksonville police and firemen will receive salaries of $150 per month.

The bills were introduced in the lower branch of the assembly by Representatives Andy O'Neill of Springfield, Richard J. Lyons of Libertyville, Lloyd Harris of Granite City, and Calvin D. Johnson, of Belleville.

The measures provide for a minimum salary of $150 a month for police and firemen in cities of 10,000 to 25,000 population and a minimum salary of $175 a month for police and firemen in cities of population between 25,000 and 150,000.

Jacksonville police and firemen at present receive a salary of $100 a month.

Similar bills were passed by the house at the last session but reached the senate during the closing days of the session and so many members were absent that there were not enough votes to pass them in the upper house.

FUNERAL NOTICE

Funeral services for Richard Haley will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Roy Fernandes, 632 South Church street, in charge of Rev. Father Andruskevitch. Interment will be made in Diamond Grove cemetery.

The remains were taken from the Reynolds Mortuary to the Fernandes residence yesterday afternoon.

Lee Berst was given preliminary hearing yesterday afternoon in the justice of the peace court of A. B. Opperman on a charge of larceny. Following presentation of evidence, he was bound over to the May term of the circuit court.

Berst was taken to the county jail pending posting of $1,000 bond.

The complaint was made by G. E. Rook who alleges the theft of chickens on his farm south of the city.

Reports Are Heard At Council Meet Thursday Night

Vote Payment for Pavement On College Avenue; Canvass Votes

The Jacksonville City Council held its regular session at the City Hall last night and transacted routine business. All properly approved bills were ordered paid, reports of officers were received, communications read and several other items of business disposed of.

Mayor Fletcher J. Blackburn presided at the meeting which was attended by Aldermen Cocking, Denney, Harmon, Weaver, Early and Green. Aldermen Matthews and Brown were absent.

City Clerk J. R. Phillips reported that the city's share of the state fuel tax for January was $2,337.37.

He also read a communication from the State Sanitary Engineering Laboratories stating that the water being pumped into the Jacksonville city water mains was safe for drinking purposes.

A communication was also read stating that Ellen Davis will bring action against the city for recovery of damages on account of a personal injury sustained last November.

The report of the health officer and sanitary inspector was received and placed on file.

The council voted to pay the R. McCalm, Inc., $1,079.19 for paving of a portion of West College Ave. and Mound Ave. from Woodland Place to City Place.

Alderman Ralph Green called the council's attention to several curbs on paved streets which had been damaged in some manner during the past few years. The council voted to have all these curbs repaired and City Engineer Kenneth Stapleton was instructed to have the work done with relief labor, the city to furnish the materials needed.

Following the council meeting, Mayor Blackburn, City Clerk Phillips and City Attorney Edward Cleary canvassed the vote of the primary election and will report their findings at the next meeting of the council.
